

Abstract

A holding and positioning system for locates and moves adjunct surgical accessory instruments relative to a patient's body during arthroscopic surgery without risking rupture of the patient's tissue at the instrument access opening in the patient's body.